The Australasian Procurement and Construction Council (APCC) and the University of Canberra have formed an alliance to offer innovative professional development for procurement practitioners and those in related professional roles.

The Graduate Certificate, Graduate Diploma and Master of Business Administration in Strategic Procurement courses are designed to develop the professional management competencies of current and future leaders in strategic procurement, who seek to enhance their career prospects in business and government organisations, locally, nationally and internationally. The courses focus on total lifecycle approaches to strategic procurement.

The student learning experience includes case studies and work-integrated learning opportunities based on the University's unique relationships with government and industry, so that students can directly apply their theoretical and practical understanding in the workplace. The courses are presented in a range of teaching formats including lectures, tutorials, seminars and workshops. Units are offered in mainstream and flexible delivery modes including intensive delivery.

The University of Canberra has credit transfer arrangements with other Australian universities for students who move interstate during their studies.

Organisations can invest in the programs to develop the skills of their staff, especially those identified as procurement industry leaders. By supporting the programs, employers are investing in the long-term sustainability, performance and competitiveness of their organisation.
